Maybe MSM can help prevent this kind of cancer. I dont know, but I will continue to take it rather than to subject myself to so called modern medicine. Leukemia is a disease of the blood and bone marrow that occurs on the background of genetic predispositions to cancer. Leukemia affects the cellular process of maturation, causing the accumulation of immature blood cells in the spinal marrow and bloodstream. In some cases leukemia causes the incomplete cells to multiply very quickly, while in other cases the abnormal blood cells have prolonged periods of life and persist in different places inside the body. Incomplete blood cells cant substitute for normal blood cells, as they cant carry out their roles. The cells affected by leukemia are therefore incompatible with the
